More families came to look at Homer. Each was a little different from the other but Homer would be happy with any family: large or small, short or tall, or any color at all. Can you help each family find their way to Homer?

Another family that came to see Homer had dark skin and a little girl named Elizabeth in a wheelchair. Homer knew she would need special ramps to get around. Can you think of anything else Elizabeth would need?

One family that came to look at Homer came from a far away country called Japan. They looked different from some other families but that made no difference to Homer. If they lived with him, Homer would love them. Can you find Japan on the map?

THE CIVIL RIGHTS ACT OF 1968 BECAME LAW ON APRIL 11, 1968. TITLE VIII, KNOWN AS THE FAIR HOUSING ACT, MADE IT ILLEGAL TO DISCRIMINATE ON THE BASES OF RACE, COLOR, RELIGION, OR NATIONAL ORIGIN.

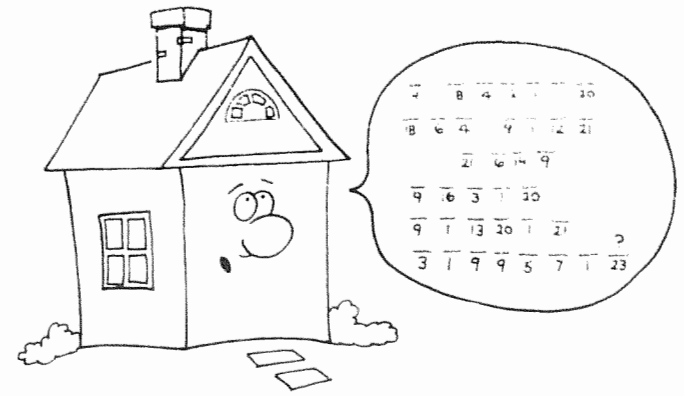

THE LAW WAS AMENDED IN 1974 TO PROHIBIT DISCRIMINATION ON THE BASES OF SEX.

AND AGAIN IN 1988 ON THE BASES OF FAMILIAL STATUS AND PHYSICAL OR MENTAL DISABILITIES.

IN 1965, OHIO BECAME ONE OF THE FIRST STATES TO ENACT FAIR HOUSING LAW. CHANGES WERE MADE TO THE LAW IN 1992. OHIO'S FAIR HOUSING LAW GIVES ALL PERSONS IN THE PROTECTED CLASSES THE RIGHT TO LIVE WHEREVER THEY CAN AFFORD TO BUY A HOME OR RENT AN APARTMENT.

MANY LOCAL GOVERNMENTS HAVE ALSO PASSED FAIR HOUSING LAWS THROUGHOUT OHIO.

You see, Homer knew there were very important laws created by wise people to protect a family's right to live where ever they want. If someone tries to stop them it is wrong and against the law.

Homer and all of his friends have a secret code. Can you help Homer read this important message?

Each family that came to visit Homer took a photograph of him. Can you find the matching picture of Homer in the photographs above?

One of the first families to visit Homer was a very strange family indeed. They explained they were the Beep family from the planet Gleep. Although they were different from most families, Homer decided that if they lived with him he would love them.

One bright, sunny morning, Homer House decided he was lonely. Homer needed a family to live with him. Since people can live anywhere they want, Homer hoped a family would want to live with him.

At last, a family loved Homer and came to live with him. Homer House loved them and wasn't lonely anymore.
